MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

3 Currently before this Court are two pending motions seeking to prohibit the Las 4 Vegas Metropolitan Police Department’s (“LVMPD”) from disclosing its criminal
5 investigative file regarding an alleged sexual assault that occurred in 2009. LVMPD
6 produced its criminal investigative file in the instant case pursuant to a Subpoena Duces
7 Tecum. It is LVMPD’s understanding that such records are currently subject to a protective 8 order in this case and particular records within the file have been deemed privileged under 9 both attorney-client and work product. LVMPD has since received public record requests
10 for the subject investigative file. LVMPD took the position that the records could be 11 disclosed in redacted form. Due to the filings in the instant case and the protective order, 12 however, LVMPD has not produced any records and defers to this Court for instructions.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. THE CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION.

15 LVMPD, as a metropolitan police department, is responsible, in part, for conducting 16 investigations into alleged criminal conduct. In particular to this instant action, a victim
17 reported to LVMPD an allegation of sexual assault sometime in 2009. LVMPD conducted 18 an initial criminal investigation, but no criminal charges were filed as no person of interest
19 was identified. Nearly a decade later, in 2018, the criminal investigation was reopened at the 20 request of the victim who identified a person of interest and wanted to move forward with 21 criminal charges.

22 LVMPD received additional records from the victim and her counsel in an effort to 23 support the reopening of the criminal investigation. This included documents, which the 24 Magistrate Judge has since declared to be protected by the attorney-client and work product 25 privilege, between the person of interest and his counsel (these documents are referred as the 26 “Football Leak” documents). While LVMPD further investigated the alleged sexual assault, 27 the Clark County District Attorney’s Office denied criminal charges.

B. THE INSTANT CASE AND SUBPOENA OF THE INVESTIGATIVE FILE.

In 2018, a civil lawsuit ensued stemming from the 2009 alleged sexual assault between the victim and the person of interest (hereinafter referred to as the “Civil Case”). As part of the Civil Case, counsel representing the person of interest subpoenaed LVMPD for its entire criminal investigative file regarding the alleged sexual assault on March 31, 2021. See Subpoena attached as Exhibit A. This included information from both the 2009 and 2018 investigations. Prior to releasing the requested records, LVMPD requested and obtained a signed authorization from the victim in accordance with NRS 200.3771.

It was also LVMPD's understanding that the released records would further be subject to a protective order prohibiting public disclosure of the records in the Civil Case. The Parties have confirmed that the criminal investigative file produced in response to the subpoena is deemed confidential and subject to the protective order in the Civil Case. See ECF No. 101. Recently, the Magistrate Judge in the Civil Case concluded that the Football Leak documents are subject to the attorney-client and work product privileges. See ECF No. 143. Based on the arguments presented by the person of interest, the Magistrate Judge recommended case-ending sanctions. This particular issue remains pending before this Court. Id.

C. THE PUBLIC RECORD REQUESTS AND LVMPD'S RESPONSE.

LVMPD has received several public record requests for the criminal investigative file involving the alleged sexual assault that occurred in 2009. In particular, The New York Times (“NYT”) was one of the first media outlets that submitted a request for the criminal investigative file involving the person of interest. LVMPD informed NYT that the records sought contained confidential information pursuant to NRS 200.3771 and that both the victim and the person of interest had non-trivial privacy interests in the information contained in the records and these interests outweighed NYT’s interest in disclosure. When LVMPD initially responded to NYT, it was unaware of any pending motion for sanctions by the person of interest or any Report and Recommendation made by the Magistrate Judge.

1 NYT responded and claimed, because the victim has reported the alleged sexual 2 assault to the media and initiated the Civil Case, any privacy interest that existed had 3 diminished. Based on NYT's position, LVMPD concluded that it could produce certain 4 requested records in a redacted format and remain in compliance with NRS 200.3771 and 5 ensure that the privacy interests of the persons involved were protected. At this time, 6 LVMPD learned of the Report and Recommendation issued by the Magistrate Judge in the 7 Civil Case. As a result, LVMPD informed NYT that it would produce its criminal 8 investigative file in redacted form but would not produce any records that contained
9 attorney-client and/or work-product information (i.e. Football Leak documents). See Letter
10 to NYT attached hereto as Exhibit B.

11 Due to the fact that LVMPD understood that a protective order was in place in the 12 Civil Case and the requested records were subject to the protective order, LVMPD informed
13 counsel for both the victim and person of interest that it had received a public records
14 request and that LVMPD intended to comply with its obligations under the NPRA and 15 produce the criminal investigative file in redacted format. See Letters to Counsel dated 16 November 18, 2021, collectively attached hereto as Exhibit C.

17 Both the victim and person of interest objected to the disclosure of the criminal
18 investigative file. See Email from Ms. Kendelee Works attached hereto as Exhibit D; Letter
19 from Mr. Les Stovall attached hereto as Exhibit E. As a result of LVMPD's representation 20 that it intended disclose the requested records in redacted format, the person of interest filed 21 a Motion for a Protective Order in the Civil Case seeking to prohibit LVMPD from 22 disclosing the criminal investigative file. See ECF No. 161. Upon receiving the Motion for 23 Protective Order, LVMPD informed NYT that it would not be disclosing the requested
24 records until the federal District Court issued a decision on the pending motion.
25 Subsequently, the victim filed a Motion for Preliminary Injunction, requesting the Court to 26 enter an order prohibiting LVMPD from disclosing the Football Leak documents. See ECF
27 No. 143.

1 Recently, the person of interest submitted a limited reply in support of its motion for 2 a protective order claiming that the issue is moot because LVMPD has indicated that it
3 would not produce the records absent a court order. See ECF No. 169 at 8:12-14. However,
4 the person of interest ignores the fact that LVMPD agreed to withhold the records until this
5 Court made a decision on his outstanding motion—not any court order. The Court has not 6 yet ruled on either motion.

7 D. LVMPD'S RESPONSIVE RECORDS.

8 As a result of the initial 2009 criminal investigation, an Incident Crime Report,
9 Property Report, and a Voluntary Statement were created. These records contain personal 10 identifying information of the victim, including, but not limited to, name, address, birthdate,
11 social security number, telephone number, and details of the alleged sexual assault,
12 including but not limited to, when, where, and how the alleged sexual assault occurred.

13 In relation to the re-opened 2018 investigation, LVMPD maintains the following
14 records: Declaration of Warrant/Summons; three voluntary statements from the victim;
15 voluntary statements from five witnesses; property reports; lab results; drawing by victim;
16 copy of a letter by victim to person of interest; communications between LVMPD detectives
17 and counsel for victim, which include the Football Leak documents.

18 The Declaration, voluntary statements, and property reports contain sensitive 19 information, including, names (including the name of the person of interest), addresses, 20 birthdates, social security numbers, telephone numbers, and details of the alleged sexual 21 assault, including but not limited to, when, where, and how the alleged sexual assault
22 occurred. The drawing and personal statement by the victim also details the circumstances 23 involved in the alleged sexual assault. The lab results pertain to DNA results related to 24 property impounded as evidence. The communications in the criminal investigative file 25 include communications between LVMPD detectives, the victim, and her counsel. These 26 communications include emails and correspondence. While LVMPD takes the position that 27 the communications themselves are subject to disclosure, the attachments, including the

1 Football Leak documents, are subject to the attorney-client and work product privilege as 2 determined by the Magistrate Judge and would not be disclosed.

3 III. LEGAL ARGUMENT

4 LVMPD has maintained its position that the subject criminal investigative file could 5 be disclosed in redacted form, with the exception of the attorney-client privileged records.
 6 Given the person of interest's wavering position, LVMPD wants to ensure that it is not in 7 violation of this Court's protective by producing the records in a redacted format.¹ It is 8 worth noting that the records at issue were produced pursuant to a Subpoena Duces Tecum,
 9 thus establishing this Court's subject matter jurisdiction over the records. And, both parties
 10 in this case acknowledge that such records are subject to a protective order. If LVMPD
 11 were to disclose the records in redacted form, the information not redacted would, in theory, 12 no longer be subject to the protective order as such information would be in the public's eye.

13 A. NEVADA'S PUBLIC RECORD ACT.

14 The NPRA, codified at NRS 239.010 et. seq., governs public records requests to 15 government agencies within Nevada. Under the NPRA, all public books and public records 16 of governmental entities must remain open to the public, unless "otherwise declared by law
 17 to be confidential." NRS 239.010(1) (emphasis added). "Under NRS 239.0107(1), upon
 18 being presented with a NPRA request, a governmental entity must do one of four things 19 within five business days of receiving a public records request;, a governmental entity must 20 provide notice that it will be unable to make the record available by the end of the fifth 21 business day and provide '[a] date and time after which the public book or record will be 22 available' to inspect or copy, NRS 239.0107(1)(c), or provide notice that it must deny the 23 request because the record, or a part of the record, is confidential, and provide "[a] citation
 24 to the specific statute or other legal authority that makes the public book or record, or a

25
 26 ¹ Out of an abundance of caution to ensure that LVMPD is not liable to the Parties in this case for 27 invading their respective privacy interests nor liable to the media outlets seeking the records,
 28 LVMPD filed a Petition for Judicial Confirmation in the Eighth Judicial District Court, Clark
 County, Nevada pursuant to NRS 43.100 informing the court of the procedural posture of the instant case and LVMPD's position regarding disclosure.

1 part thereof, confidential,’ NRS 239.0107(1)(d).” Las Vegas Review-Journal v. City of 2 Henderson, 441 P.3d 546 (Nev. 2019) (emphasis added) (unpublished).

3 A court order deeming records confidential falls prohibits an entity from disclosing
 4 such records. See City of Hartford v. Chase, 942 F.2d 130, 135 (2d Cir.1991) (“a federal
 5 court’s power to seal documents takes precedence over FOIA rules that would otherwise
 6 allow those documents to be disclosed”). In U.S. v. Loughner, the Washington Post sought
 7 records of an investigation file related to a shooting from the Pima County Sheriff. 807
 8 F.Supp.2d 828, 829 (D. Ariz. 2011). The records were subject to a protective order, which 9 prohibited the disclosure of the investigative file. Id. The media outlets sought to intervene
 10 in the federal case to modify the protective order. Id. While the first issue addressed by the 11 Court was whether the media had a right to intervene, the second issue was whether the 12 media could access the records given that a protective order was in place. Id. at 832-33.
 13 The Court noted that the Sheriff appropriately denied the media access based protective 14 order in place. Id. at 832. The Court ultimately denied the media access and modified the 15 protective order to permit the Sheriff to disclose records that did not invade privacy interests
 16 if it so chose. Id. at 836. Although the Court’s reasoning relied on the fact that the matter
 17 was subject to federal law, it nonetheless determined that even if state law applied, including 18 Arizona public records law, the protective order and non-disclosure of the records would 19 still be appropriate. Id. at 835.

20 Based on Loughner, it does appear that a protective order may prohibit a government 21 agency’s disclosure of records in accordance with the state’s public records law.
 22 Accordingly, LVMPD addresses the applicable privileges to the subject records and defers
 23 to this Court, as the records are subject to the protective order.

24 B. IDENTIFYING INFORMATION OF SEXUAL ASSAULT VICTIMS IS 25 CONFIDENTIAL.

26 In recognizing the privacy interests of sex crime victims, the Legislature determined 27 that personal information of victims is confidential unless the victim waives it in writing.
 28 NRS 200.3774. If someone releases this information without a waiver, they are guilty of a

1 misdemeanor. NRS 200.3771(5). Also, NRS 41.1398 provides a victim of sexual assault an
 2 avenue to seek damages if disclosure of such information occurs in violation of NRS 3 200.3771-200.3774.

4 Identifying information of victims of sexual offenses is expressly deemed 5 confidential pursuant to NRS 200.3771. NRS 200.3771 provides that the personal 6 identifying information of a victim of a sexual offense is confidential, including, but not 7 limited to: name, photograph, likeness, address, or telephone number. It further provides the 8 willful violation or the willful neglect of NRS 200.3771 is punishable as criminal contempt.
 9 When a statute or regulation expressly and unequivocally deems information confidential,
 10 this information is exempt from disclosure under the NPRA. See City of Sparks v. Reno 11 Newspapers, Inc., 399 P.3d 352, 357 (Nev. 2017) (exempting from disclosure under the 12 NPRA the identifying information for medical marijuana businesses based upon NRS
 13 453A.370(5) and NAC 453A.714(1)); NRS 239.010(1)).

14 More importantly, a public officer is prohibited from releasing such confidential
 15 information unless, inter alia, a court order is issued pursuant to NRS 200.3771. NRS 16 200.3773(1)(c). Only under limited circumstances may a Court order the disclosure of the 17 identifying information. Id. In such instances, the person requesting the confidential 18 information must demonstrate: (1) good cause exists for the disclosure; (2) disclosure will 19 not place the victim at risk for personal harm; and (3) the victim must have notice of the 20 application and the opportunity to be heard. Id.

21 LVMPD's criminal investigative file pertains to an alleged sexual assault that 22 occurred in 2009. NRS 200.3771 clearly prohibits LVMPD from disseminating identifying 23 information of the victim. Although the statute provides a list of identifying information 24 that cannot be disclosed, it also explicitly includes the language "but not limited to" In 25 Nevada, the phrasing "but not limited to" requires an expansive construction; i.e., a narrow 26 construction is error. Sims v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Court, 125 Nev. 126, 130, 206 P.3d 980, 27 983 (2009). In Sims, the Court was called on to construe NRS 178.415(3), which involves 28 competency hearings. The statute provides that, upon receiving competency reports from

1 the court-appointed competency examiners, the district court “shall permit counsel for both
 2 sides to examine the person or persons appointed to examine the defendant.” Additionally,
 3 “[t]he prosecuting attorney and the defendant may: (a) Introduce other evidence including,
 4 without limitation, evidence related to treatment to competency and the possibility of 5 ordering the involuntary administration of medication; and (b) Cross-examine one another’s
 6 witnesses.” Id. at 130, 206 P.3d at 983 (emphasis added). The Court held that the phrase 7 “without limitation” is unambiguously broad:

8 The plain and unambiguous language of NRS 178.415(3) is expansive and in 9 no way limits the prosecuting attorney’s or defense counsel’s ability to 10 introduce evidence during the competency hearing. The plain meaning of the 11 statute is evidenced by the phrases “other evidence” and “without limitation,” 12 which denote expansive legislative intent. See Alsenz v. Clark Co. School
Dist., 109 Nev. 1062, 1065, 864 P.2d 285, 287 (1993); see also St. Paul
Mercury Ins. Co. v. Lexington Ins. Co., 78 F.3d 202, 206-07 (5th Cir. 1996) (word “including” is generally given expansive reading, even without additional language of “without limitation”).

13 Id. [Emphasis added.]

14 Based on Sims, the “but not limited to” language in NRS 200.3771 must be 15 construed broadly. The mere fact that the statute lists certain identifying information 16 without enumerating all imaginable identifying information is inconsequential given the 17 Legislature’s inclusion of the “but not limited to” language. Thus, identifying information 18 inherently includes details of the alleged sexual assault that would identify the victim, such 19 as details of when and how the sexual assault occurred to the extent that it would lead a 20 person to the victim’s identity.

21 Accordingly, LVMPD must redact the victim’s name, address, telephone number, 22 social security number, and any details of the alleged sexual assault that would lead to the 23 victim’s identity from the criminal investigative file prior to disclosure.

24 C. NEVADA’S INFORMER PRIVILEGE REQUIRES LVMPD TO
REDACT INFORMATION THAT WOULD REVEAL THE IDENTITY OF ANY WITNESS.

26 LVMPD’s criminal investigative file also contains information from and pertaining 27 to witnesses of the alleged incident. Nevada recognizes the inherent confidentiality of the

1 identity of individuals that disclose information related to the commission of crimes to law
 2 enforcement agencies. NRS 49.335. Specifically, NRS 49.335 provides:

3 The State or a political subdivision thereof has a privilege to refuse to disclose the identity of a person who has furnished to a law enforcement
 4 officer information purporting to reveal the commission of a crime.

5 Importantly, this privilege is not limited to “confidential sources” or “confidential 6 informants,” but protects the identity of any individual who provides information to 7 LVMPD that purports to reveal the commission of a crime. This interpretation is further 8 supported by the fact that the privilege no longer exists once the person appears as a witness.
 9 NRS 49.355. Likewise, the term identity, albeit undefined, is not limited to the individual’s
 10 name, but also includes any identifying information, such as the actual information provided 11 to law enforcement officers. Indeed, statutory construction requires such an interpretation.

12 Generally, when a statute’s language is plain and its meaning clear, the courts will 13 apply that plain language. Leven v. Frey, 123 Nev. 399, 403, 168 P.3d 712, 715 (2007). If a 14 statutory phrase is left undefined, the court will construe the phrase according to its plain
 15 and ordinary meaning. In re Resort at Summerlin Litig., 122 Nev. 177, 182, 127 P.3d 1076,
 16 1079 (2006). The court must interpret a statute in a reasonable manner, that is, “[t]he words 17 of the statute should be construed in light of the policy and spirit of the law, and the 18 interpretation made should avoid absurd results.” Desert Valley Water Co. v. State,
 19 Engineer, 104 Nev. 718, 720, 766 P.2d 886, 886–87 (1988). In reviewing a statute, it 20 “should be given [its] plain meaning and must be construed as a whole and not be read in a 21 way that would render words or phrases superfluous or make a provision nugatory.”
 22 Mangarella v. State, 117 Nev. 130, 133, 17 P.3d 989, 991 (2001) (internal quotation 23 omitted).

24 Here, the term “identity” is not defined within the statutory scheme of NRS 49.335.
 25 LVMPD contends that the term “identity” is not limited to an individual’s name but includes 26 any information that would otherwise identify an individual. Had the Legislature limited
 27 NRS 49.335 to apply only to a person’s name, it would have used the term “name.” Instead,
 28 the Legislature cautiously chose the term “identity.” The informer statutory scheme

1 supports LVMPD's interpretation. In that respect, NRS 49.355 provides that informer
 2 privilege no longer exists if the "informer's interest in the subject matter of his or her
 3 communication has been disclosed." If NRS 49.335 simply applied to an informer's name,
 4 there would be no reason to preclude the privilege if the informer's interest in the subject
 5 matter of his/her communication has been disclosed. The definition of "identity" further
 6 supports such a construction. See IDENTITY, Black's Law Dictionary (11th ed. 2019)
 7 ("The distinguishing personality or attributes of an individual. More generally, the qualities
 8 and attitudes that a person or group of people have, differentiating them from others.")

9 Construing the term "identity" in NRS 49.335 to include information that would 10 identify the witness, LVMPD must redact information that would identify any witness to the 11 alleged sexual assault.

12 D. ANY RECORDS THAT CONTAIN ATTORNEY-CLIENT OR WORK
 13 PRODUCT INFORMATION ARE CONFIDENTIAL.

14 1. The Attorney-Client Privilege.

15 The attorney-client privilege is a long-standing privilege at common law that protects 16 communications between attorneys and clients. See Upjohn Co. v. United States, 449 U.S.
 17 383, 389, 101 S.Ct. 677, 66 L.Ed.2d 584 (1981). The purpose of the attorney-client privilege 18 is to encourage clients to make full disclosures to their attorneys in order to promote the 19 broader public interests of recognizing the importance of fully informed advocacy in the 20 administration of justice. Id.

21 Nevada codified the attorney-client privilege at NRS 49.095. For this privilege to 22 apply, the communications must be between an attorney and client, for the purpose of 23 facilitating the rendition of professional legal services, and be confidential. Id. "A 24 communication is 'confidential' if it is not intended to be disclosed to third persons other 25 than those to whom disclosure is in furtherance of the rendition of professional legal 26 services to the client or those reasonably necessary for the transmission of the 27 communication." NRS 49.055. Protected communications can be from a lawyer to a client
 28 or from a client to a lawyer. See Upjohn, 449 U.S. at 390, 101 S.Ct. 677. Communications

1 may be disclosed to other persons within a corporation or legal team in order to facilitate the 2 rendition of legal advice without losing confidentiality; however, the disclosure must only 3 be to the limited group of persons who are necessary for the communication, and attempts 4 must be made to keep the information confidential and not widely disclosed. See Coastal 5 States Gas Corp. v. Dep't of Energy, 617 F.2d 854, 863 (D.C. Cir. 1980).

6 2. The Work Product Privilege.

7 The work-product doctrine protects more than just communications between a client
 8 and attorney, and is thus broader than the attorney-client privilege. Hickman v. Taylor, 329
 9 U.S. 495, 508 (1947). “At its core, the work-product doctrine shelters the mental processes 10 of the attorney, providing a privileged area within which he can analyze and prepare his 11 client's case.” United States v. Nobles, 422 U.S. 225, 238 (1975). Thus, an attorney's work 12 product, which includes “mental impressions, conclusions, opinions, and legal theories of 13 counsel ..., are [protected from disclosure].” Wardleigh v. Second Judicial Dist. Court, 111
 14 Nev. 345, 359, 891 P.2d 1180, 1189 (1995).

15 Nevada's work-product privilege is found at NRCP 26(b)(3), which provides, in 16 relevant part:

17 [A] party may obtain discovery of documents and tangible things ... prepared 18 in anticipation of litigation ... by or for another party or by or for that other 19 party's representative ... only upon a showing that the party seeking discovery 20 has substantial need of the materials ... and that the party is unable without 21 undue hardship to obtain the substantial equivalent of the materials by other 22 means. In ordering discovery of such materials when the required showing 23 has been made, the court shall protect against disclosure of the mental 24 impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories of an attorney or other 25 representative of a party concerning the litigation.

26 Therefore, like its federal counterpart, FRCP 26(b)(3), NRCP 26(b)(3) protects 27 documents with “two characteristics: (1) they must be prepared in anticipation of litigation
 28 or for trial, and (2) they must be prepared by or for another party or by or for that other 29 party's representative.” In re Grand Jury Subpoena (Mark Torf/Torf Env'l. Mgmt.) (Torf), 357 F.3d 900, 907 (9th Cir. 2004) (internal quotation marks omitted).

30 In determining whether materials were prepared in anticipation of litigation, courts
 31 generally use one of two tests: (1) the “primary purpose” test or (2) the “because of” test.

1 The Supreme Court has adopted the “because of” test for determining whether work was 2 done “in anticipation of litigation.” See Wynn Resorts, Ltd. v. Eighth Jud. Dist. Ct. in & for 3 Cty. of Clark, 133 Nev. 369, 384–85, 399 P.3d 334, 348 (2017).

4 Under the “because of” test, documents are prepared in anticipation of litigation
 5 when “in light of the nature of the document and the factual situation in the particular case, 6 the document can fairly be said to have been prepared or obtained because of the prospect of 7 litigation.” Restatement (Third) of the Law Governing Lawyers § 87 cmt. i (2000) (quoting
 8 Charles A. Wright et al., Federal Practice & Procedure § 2024, at 343 (2d ed. 1994)
 9 (emphasis added)). The Restatement approach is consistent with Nevada caselaw examining 10 work product and protecting records prepared by or at the request of an attorney, but not 11 records prepared in the normal course of business since those are not prepared because of 12 the prospect of litigation. See, e.g., Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corp. v. Eighth Judicial Dist.
 13 Court, 113 Nev. 521, 527–28, 936 P.2d 844, 848 (1997) (concluding that hospital's 14 “occurrence reports” were not protected work product because they were prepared in the 15 normal course of business).

16 The anticipation of litigation must be the sine qua non for the creation of the 17 document—“but for the prospect of that litigation,” the document would not exist. Torf, 357
 18 F.3d 900, at 908 (quoting United States v. Adlman, 134 F.3d 1194, 1195 (2d Cir. 1998)).
 19 However, “a document … does not lose protection under this formulation merely because it 20 is created in order to assist with a business decision.” Adlman, 134 F.3d at 1202.
 21 “Conversely … [this rule] withdraws protection from documents that are prepared in the 22 ordinary course of business or that would have been created in essentially similar form 23 irrespective of the litigation.” Id.

24 In determining whether the “because of” test is met, the Supreme Court also adopted
 25 the “totality of the circumstances” standard based on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals
 26 reasoning in Torf. See Wynn, 133 Nev. 369, 386.

27 In Torf, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals stated that

28

1 [t]he “because of” standard does not consider whether litigation was a
 2 primary or secondary motive behind the creation of a document. Rather, it
 3 considers the totality of the circumstances and affords protection when it can 4 fairly be said that the “document was created because of anticipated 5 litigation, and would not have been created in substantially similar form but 6 for the prospect of that litigation[.]”

7 357 F.3d at 908 (second alteration in original) (quoting Adlman, 134 F.3d at 1195).

8 In evaluating the totality of the circumstances, the court should “look[] to the 9 context of the communication and content of the document to determine whether a request 10 for legal advice is in fact fairly implied, taking into account the facts surrounding the 11 creation of the document and the nature of the document.” In re CV Therapeutics, 2006 WL 12 1699536, at *4. Lastly, the court should consider “whether a communication explicitly 13 sought advice and comment.” Id.

14 3. Application of the Privileges.

15 Here, LVMPD takes the position that the Football Leak documents are subject to the 16 above-mentioned privileges. First, the email communications all appear to be between the 17 person of interest, his representatives, and his various counsel. Additionally, all of the email 18 communications assist with facilitating the rendition of professional legal services. As such, 19 the attorney-client privilege likely applies to the email communications.

20 As for the other Football Leak documents, it is fairly clear they were created based 21 on the pending litigation and potential criminal charges and contain mental impressions,
 22 conclusions, opinions, and legal theories of counsel. It is also important to note that LVMPD
 23 did not receive these documents from the person of interest. The victim and her counsel 24 provided LVMPD the Football Leak documents. The person of interest actually alleges these 25 communications and documents were stolen during a computer hack and thus there is no
 26 waiver of the privileges. Indeed, the Magistrate Judge in the Civil Case determined there
 27 was no waiver. The privilege issue remains pending in the Civil Case before the District
 28 Court Judge.

29 Generally, the NPRA requires a government entity to redact, delete, conceal or 30 separate, including, without limitation, electronically, the confidential information from the

1 information included in the public book or record that is not otherwise confidential. NRS
 2 239.010(3); Clark County Sch. Dist. v. Las Vegas Review-Journal, 134 Nev. 707, 429 P.3d
 3 320 (2018). When redaction of a file would constitute a pointless exercise, non-disclosure
 4 of the document is appropriate. Hunt v. F.B.I., 972 F.2d 286, 288 (9th Cir. 1992);
 5 Republican Attorneys Gen. Ass'n v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep't, 136 Nev. Adv. Op. 3 6 (2020).

7 In Republican Attorneys Gen. Ass'n, the Supreme Court explicitly recognized that 8 when dealing with confidentiality, certain items are not subject to redaction, because the 9 very nature of the document itself, is not reasonably capable of redaction to avoid disclosing
 10 the confidential information at issue. Id. The Court stated:

11 We determine that redaction is not possible because all portions of the 12 bodycam footage contain confidential juvenile justice information, even those 13 portions depicting Ford. We are aware that RAGA has not seen the bodycam
 14 footage, and we understand that the circumstances of this case require RAGA
 15 to trust this court's determination of confidentiality. Under a different set of 16 facts, a governmental entity may be able to separate confidential periods of 17 bodycam footage from substantial nonconfidential periods or blur the 18 occasional juvenile's face to redact or otherwise edit out confidential
 19 material. But that is not the case here. Ford's depiction and any 20 communications he makes are inextricably commingled with the confidential
 21 juvenile justice information.

23 Here, the records containing the attorney-client and work-product privilege would 24 result in hundreds of pages entirely blacked out, warranting non-disclosure of these 25 particular records.

26 E. THE PRIVACY INTERESTS OF THE VICTIM AND PERSON OF 27 INTEREST REQUIRE REDACTION OF PERSONAL
 28 INFORMATION.

29 1. The Cameranesi Test and the Balancing of Privacy Interests.

30 In Clark Cty. School Dist. v. Las Vegas Review-Journal, 134 Nev. 700, 707-08, 429
 31 P.3d 313, 320-21 (2018), the Supreme Court specifically found that privacy interests of 32 individuals must be considered in the context of public record requests. In doing so, the 33 Court adopted the two-part test articulated in Cameranesi v. United States Department of 34 Defense, 856 F.3d 626, 637 (9th Cir. 2017), for determining if a government entity should

1 withhold information in a public records request. Id. at 708, 429 P.3d at 321. The first step
 2 in a Cameranesi analysis requires the government to establish that disclosure implicates a
 3 personal privacy interest that is nontrivial or more than de minimis. If the government shows
 4 that the privacy interest at stake is nontrivial, the requester must then show that the public
 5 interest sought to be advanced is a significant one and the information sought is likely to 6 advance that interest. Id. (Emphasis added). If the second prong is not met, the information
 7 should be redacted. Id. The Cameranesi test thus balances “individual nontrivial privacy
 8 rights against the public’s right to access public information.” Id. at 708, 429 P.3d at 321.
 9 This balancing test approach “ensures that the district courts are adequately weighing the 10 competing interests of privacy and government accountability.” Id. at 709, 429 P.3d at 321.

11

12 2. The Victim and Person of Interest Maintain a Non-Trivial Privacy
Interest in the Criminal Investigative File.

13 The criminal investigative records at issue contain personally identifying information 14 of victims, witnesses, and sensitive information of an alleged crime where the person of 15 interest was neither arrested nor criminally charged. If disclosed without redactions, this 16 information provides the public with (1) the name of the victim and each witness; (2) a 17 stigmatizing investigation concerning an alleged sexual assault where no arrest was made²;
 18 and (3) highly personal medical history.

19 In Clark Cty. School Dist., the Supreme Court was presented with a similar question
 20 focusing on balancing disclosure under the NPRA with the privacy interests of individuals.
 21 134 Nev. 707-08, 429 P.3d 320-21. There, the Court addressed the disclosure of victims of 22 sexual harassment and support staff who allegedly were harassed by a public official. Id.
 23 Despite the fact the LVRJ maintained a compelling argument for disclosure based on the 24 involvement of an elected official, the Court still found that privacy interests of the teachers, 25 witnesses, or victims of the harassment were not appropriate for disclosure. Id.

27

28 ² See Stern v. Fed. Bureau of Investigation, 737 F.2d 84, 91–92 (D.C.Cir.1984). (noting individuals have a “strong interest in not being associated unwarrantedly with alleged criminal activity”).

1 More extreme than the issue presented in CCSD, this matter involves an alleged
 2 sexual assault. First, the privacy interests here are far more sensitive than those recognized
 3 by the Supreme Court in Clark Cty. School Dist., as the documents sought have everything 4 from full names, home addresses, details of private parties' intimacy, details of an alleged 5 sexual assault, personal identifying medical information and treatment, and information
 6 pertaining to a criminal investigation.³ Each of these interests weigh heavily on the scales of 7 privacy and non-disclosure and are far from "trivial" privacy interests.

8 Here, when the above stated interests in favor of non-disclosure are weighed against 9 any potential significant public interest any requester could assert, the scales remain
 10 unchanged in favor of non-disclosure. This case has nothing to do with accountability of 11 elected officials, does not deal with any arrest or criminal prosecution, and cannot further 12 any legitimate type of public inquiry. While general allegations of a sexual assault by the 13 victim against the person of interest may have made its way to the media, such bare-boned
 14 allegations are insufficient to warrant disclosure of the sensitive information, including 15 intimate details of how the alleged sexual assault occurred. Furthermore, the lack of an 16 arrest and criminal charges also warrant redaction of any information that could reasonably 17 identify the person of interest. As such, there is no "significant public interest" to further by 18 obtaining the non-disclosed material and redacted documents at issue. Cameranesi at 708,
 19 429 P.3d at 321.

20 Accordingly, LVMPD must redact personal information related to the victim and 21 person of interest, including, but not limited to, details of the sexual assault and any personal 22 identifying information.

23 IV. CONCLUSION

24 In sum, LVMPD seeks clarity from this Court as to whether it's records that were 25 disclosed pursuant to a Subpoena Duces Tecum and now subject to a protective order may 26 ³ Courts consistently have found that "[t]here can be no clearer example of an unwarranted invasion

 27 of personal privacy than to release to the public that another individual was the subject of criminal 28 investigation." Republic of New Afrika v. FBI, 656 F.Supp. 7, 11 (D.D.C. 1985). Indeed, the person of interest has expressly asserted that he has such privacy interests here.

1 be disclosed consistent with the Nevada Public Records Act. At the Court's request,
2 LVMPD will provide the Court with a copy of its proposed redactions for in camera review
3 to ensure that no attorney-client/work product information is disclosed and any privacy
4 interests are protected.

Notice to the person who issues or requests this subpoena

If this subpoena commands the production of documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things or the inspection of premises before trial, a notice and a copy of the subpoena must be served on each party in this case before it is served on the person to whom it is directed. Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(a)(4).

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45 (c), (d), (e), and (g) (Effective 12/1/13)(c) Place of Compliance.

(1) For a Trial, Hearing, or Deposition. A subpoena may command a person to attend a trial, hearing, or deposition only as follows:

(A) within 100 miles of where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person; or

(B) within the state where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person, if the person

(i) is a party or a party's officer; or

(ii) is commanded to attend a trial and would not incur substantial expense.

(2) For Other Discovery. A subpoena may command:

(A) production of documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things at a place within 100 miles of where the person resides, is employed, or regularly transacts business in person; and

(B) inspection of premises at the premises to be inspected.

(d) Protecting a Person Subject to a Subpoena; Enforcement.

(1) Avoiding Undue Burden or Expense; Sanctions. A party or attorney responsible for issuing and serving a subpoena must take reasonable steps to avoid imposing undue burden or expense on a person subject to the subpoena. The court for the district where compliance is required must enforce this duty and impose an appropriate sanction—which may include lost earnings and reasonable attorney's fees—on a party or attorney who fails to comply.

(2) Command to Produce Materials or Permit Inspection.

(A) Appearance Not Required. A person commanded to produce documents, electronically stored information, or tangible things, or to permit the inspection of premises, need not appear in person at the place of production or inspection unless also commanded to appear for a deposition, hearing, or trial.

(B) Objections. A person commanded to produce documents or tangible things or to permit inspection may serve on the party or attorney designated in the subpoena a written objection to inspecting, copying, testing, or sampling any or all of the materials or to inspecting the premises—or to producing electronically stored information in the form or forms requested. The objection must be served before the earlier of the time specified for compliance or 14 days after the subpoena is served. If an objection is made, the following rules apply:

(i) At any time, on notice to the commanded person, the serving party may move the court for the district where compliance is required for an order compelling production or inspection.

(ii) These acts may be required only as directed in the order, and the order must protect a person who is neither a party nor a party's officer from significant expense resulting from compliance.

(3) Quashing or Modifying a Subpoena.

(A) When Required. On timely motion, the court for the district where compliance is required must quash or modify a subpoena that:

(i) fails to allow a reasonable time to comply;

(ii) requires a person to comply beyond the geographical limits specified in Rule 45(c);

(iii) requires disclosure of privileged or other protected matter, if no exception or waiver applies; or

(iv) subjects a person to undue burden.

(B) When Permitted. To protect a person subject to or affected by a subpoena, the court for the district where compliance is required may, on motion, quash or modify the subpoena if it requires:

(i) disclosing a trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information; or

(ii) disclosing an unretained expert's opinion or information that does not describe specific occurrences in dispute and results from the expert's study that was not requested by a party.

(C) Specifying Conditions as an Alternative. In the circumstances described in Rule 45(d)(3)(B), the court may, instead of quashing or modifying a subpoena, order appearance or production under specified conditions if the serving party:

(i) shows a substantial need for the testimony or material that cannot be otherwise met without undue hardship; and

(ii) ensures that the subpoenaed person will be reasonably compensated.

(e) Duties in Responding to a Subpoena.

(1) Producing Documents or Electronically Stored Information. These procedures apply to producing documents or electronically stored information:

(A) Documents. A person responding to a subpoena to produce documents must produce them as they are kept in the ordinary course of business or must organize and label them to correspond to the categories in the demand.

(B) Form for Producing Electronically Stored Information Not Specified. If a subpoena does not specify a form for producing electronically stored information, the person responding must produce it in a form or forms in which it is ordinarily maintained or in a reasonably usable form or forms.

(C) Electronically Stored Information Produced in Only One Form. The person responding need not produce the same electronically stored information in more than one form.

(D) Inaccessible Electronically Stored Information. The person responding need not provide discovery of electronically stored information from sources that the person identifies as not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. On motion to compel discovery or for a protective order, the person responding must show that the information is not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or cost. If that showing is made, the court may nonetheless order discovery from such sources if the requesting party shows good cause, considering the limitations of Rule 26(b)(2)(C). The court may specify conditions for the discovery.

(2) Claiming Privilege or Protection.

(A) Information Withheld. A person withholding subpoenaed information under a claim that it is privileged or subject to protection as trial-preparation material must:

(i) expressly make the claim; and

(ii) describe the nature of the withheld documents, communications, or tangible things in a manner that, without revealing information itself privileged or protected, will enable the parties to assess the claim.

(B) Information Produced. If information produced in response to a subpoena is subject to a claim of privilege or of protection as trial-preparation material, the person making the claim may notify any party that received the information of the claim and the basis for it. After being notified, a party must promptly return, sequester, or destroy the specified information and any copies it has; must not use or disclose the information until the claim is resolved; must take reasonable steps to retrieve the information if the party disclosed it before being notified; and may promptly present the information under seal to the court for the district where compliance is required for a determination of the claim. The person who produced the information must preserve the information until the claim is resolved.

(g) Contempt.

The court for the district where compliance is required—and also, after a motion is transferred, the issuing court—may hold in contempt a person who, having been served, fails without adequate excuse to obey the subpoena or an order related to it.

EXHIBIT 1

ITEMS TO BE PRODUCED: Complete copies of records for Event Number/Case Report Number LLV090613001815 (initially opened in 2009 and re-opened in 2018), including but not limited to, investigative reports, surveillance video, actual audio of recorded interviews of all witnesses, witness statements, officer's reports, crime scene reports, incident reports, color photographs, diagrams, test results and medical records, and all other investigative materials, whether maintained in hard copy on tape, on CD or DVD, electronically, or in any other format whatsoever.

Our File No. 14687-228

Dear Counsel:

This office represents the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department in relation to the above-referenced matter. The purpose of this correspondence is to inform you of a public records request LVMPD received from the New York Times for LVMPD's investigative files concerning Event No. 090613-1815, which involves Kathryn Mayorga and Cristiano Ronaldo. In accordance with the Nevada Public Records Act, LVMPD is required to provide the New York Times with responsive public records of the investigation concerning Ms. Mayorga and Mr. Ronaldo. After reviewing the investigative files, LVMPD determined that it will be providing the New York Times with various reports, including the crime report and property reports; voluntary statements, Declaration of Warrant/Summons, and communications to and from LVMPD regarding the investigation. Pursuant to Nevada law, however, LVMPD will redact all personal identifying information of any victims. See NRS 200.3771. It is anticipated that these records will be provided to the New York Times on or about December 1, 2021.

Re: Kathryn Mayorga v. Cristiano Ronaldo
Federal Court Case Number: 2:19-cv-00168-JAD-DJA

LVMPD Event No.: 090613-1815
Our File No. 14687-228

Dear Counsel:

This office represents the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department in relation to the above-referenced matter. The purpose of this correspondence is to inform you of a public records request LVMPD received from the New York Times for LVMPD's investigative files concerning Event No. 090613-1815, which involves Kathryn Mayorga and Cristiano Ronaldo. In accordance with the Nevada Public Records Act, LVMPD is required to provide the New York Times with responsive public records of the investigation concerning Ms. Mayorga and Mr. Ronaldo. After reviewing the investigative files, LVMPD determined that it will be providing the New York Times with various reports, including the crime report and property reports; voluntary statements, Declaration of Warrant/Summons, and communications to and from LVMPD regarding the investigation. Pursuant to Nevada law, however, LVMPD will redact all personal identifying information of any victims. See NRS 200.3771. It is anticipated that these records will be provided to the New York Times on or about December 1, 2021.

Hi Krista,

We appreciate the heads up. Please be advised that we will be making a motion asking the Court to order that the file not be produced, or at a minimum, significantly redacted. The procedural posture of the case is complicated but LVMPD's file contains documents provided to Metro by the alleged victim's current lawyer, which are privileged, attorney-client communications and work product that opposing counsel should never have had in the first place. The Magistrate recently issued a report and recommendation that the entire case be dismissed as a result. Attached for reference is a copy of the Magistrate's order, which is currently the subject of Objections by Counsel for Ms. Mayorga.

I'd like to schedule a meet and confer with Jackie as soon as possible please. I can be available anytime tomorrow or Monday. Please let me know what works.

Hope all is well with you.

Thanks,

Kendelee

Re: Mayorga v. Ronaldo, Case No. 2:19-CV-00168

Dear Ms. Nichols,

I am responding to your November 18, 2021 letter regarding the above referenced matter. As you know I represent Ms. Mayorga.

My concern with the LVMPD's proposed release of the investigative files is my correspondence to Sergeant Comiskey dated August 21, 2018 and September 24, 2018 and related documents. Attached to my correspondence are documents obtained from Football Leaks.

Within the federal litigation, the defendant has asserted these documents are attorney client and work product privileged documents under Nevada law. The defendant also contends it found additional documents within the LVMPD investigative file that were not attached to my correspondence which it claims are privileged. The plaintiff contends that under federal law of privilege and based upon the decision in Superpumper v. Leonard, 137 Nev. Adv. Op. 43 (2021) under Nevada law of privilege, these documents are not privileged due to defendant's failure to comply with Rule 26, waiver by the defendant's voluntary disclosure, failure to protect the privilege after disclosure and under the crime fraud exception. The Football Leaks documents disclosed within the federal case are also subject to a protective order.

Whether these documents are privileged is currently before the federal district court. Until this question is answered I would object to the release of the Football Leaks documents contained in the LVMPD file. I would be glad to identify the specific documents at issue in the federal court to avoid inadvertent disclosure of any Football Leak or related document pending the federal district court's decision. This objection becomes moot should the federal court agree with plaintiff's position.

Please advise if the LVMPD will withhold disclosure of the Football Leaks documents described herein, and if not, the basis for declining to do so. Your prompt response would be appreciated.
